About the opportunity

For nearly three decades the United Nations has been bringing together almost every country on earth for global climate summits called the 'Conference of the Parties' (or COP for short). World leaders will arrive in the host country, alongside tens of thousands of negotiators, government representatives, businesses and citizens for several days of talks to agree collective actions to tackle climate change.

FLN has been granted NGO (non-governmental organisation) observer status to the UNFCCC. This means we are able to nominate representatives to attend the Blue Zone of negotiations for the duration of COP30.

You'll be responsible for gathering evidence about what young people in the U.K. care about and want world leaders to take action on in relation to climate change. You'll develop ambitious, actionable and achievable policy recommendations for world leaders on behalf of the young people you represent. You'll campaign, tirelessly, for those recommendations to be adopted- by your international youth counterparts, by the U.K. government, by the United Nations, or by business or community partners.
